Sharon Keating was born and raised in New Orleans and lives and works in the city. She earned a degree in history from the University of New Orleans, and a law degree from Loyola University. After completing courses at Delgado College, Sharon became a licensed tour guide and has conducted many tours for out-of-town convention groups. She is the About.com guide to New Orleans, the author of New Orleans in Photographs (2005) and a compulsive blogger. --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.

This is a Wonderful gift for anyone familiar with New Orleans or interested in its history versus today ! I gave this book to a close friend who was born in New Orleans and he told me how much he has enjoyed viewing and reading sections of it with both of his elderly parents who are fond of their early years spent in "The Big Easy."

New Orleans Then and Now is a wonderful history in photographs for the Crescent City. I have visited New Orleans several times over the years and love the city more and more each time. This book offers a great insight to past places and their current look of today. Many show the changes of time while others remain the same as they were in the past, only more vivid and alive. There is also a few tribute pages to Hurricane Katrina and the damage that she caused with side by side photos of how these places were restored. One can instantly feel the history with each page and take hold of a sense of wonder to be at the very edge of time. This book is a must for any fans of Then & Now books.

I have several of these "Then and Now" books of different cities. I have never been disappointed and have enjoyed them all! I have bought a couple of books at sales or auctions, and while the city may not be my first choice of interest, they are still very good books. I still read them and look at the photos even though I have 1) Either never been there or 2) Never really had an interest in the city. I have never been disappointed in this series of books and would highly recommend them to anyone who enjoys reading/looking at a book concerning the historical aspect of areas and buildings and what they looked like back then versus what it looks like now.
